

Eating the city: urban agriculture

Urban agriculture course 'Eating the City' is a three-week course where we will be all visiting different locations to learn about the main concepts and challenges related to urban agriculture.

You will get the chance to experience and work with different types of urban agriculture like Hydroponics, Aquaponics and Rooftop farming.

During the course you will work on your own project for Urban Agriculture in your own city. You will learn how to grow, process and distribute food in an Urban Agriculture Project through practical experience.

Aeres

For more info about this course, please click here.